Chairman's Circle addresses economy, jobs

The inaugural meeting of the Chamber's Chairman's Circle was a luncheon on April 15, featuring Dr. Helen Currie, senior economist with ConocoPhilips. Current Chamber Board Chair David Patterson, introduced Dr. Currie, who oversees ConocoPhilips' long range plan development and advises on investment analyses, political risk, scenario planning as well as other strategic initiatives.

Dr. Currie shared her insight with attendees about current oil market dynamics, economic benefits of U.S. production, and the need for a change in export policy. She reviewed the structural and cyclical drivers of the recent oil market price decline, and the long-term oil demand dynamics.

Her global view of the current and future oil market included the economic benefits of energy production growth in the U.S., and the need for upgrading U.S. trade policy regarding crude oil exports.

In a slide illustrating how oil and gas production spurred growth in the broader U.S. economy, Dr. Currie quoted an HIS Energy, Inc. study that says “For every job created in oil production, three jobs are created in the supply chain and six more in the broader economy.”

The purpose of the newly-formed Chairman's Circle is to provide economic information on timely subjects; to offer on-site visits to relevant and emerging businesses; and to facilitate valuable networking among The Chamber's major investors and influencers, including elected officials.

The luncheon was held in the Penthouse Centennial Room of the Hyatt Regency Denver Tech Center.

Gaylord: The project is alive, well, and moving every day

Aurora Mayor Steve Hogan has confirmed that the Gaylord Hotel and Conference Center – which has been delayed because of opposition to the project and one of its funding mechanisms - will break ground between October and December of 2015.

"The truth is, the project is alive, well, and moving every day toward a groundbreaking in the 4th quarter of this year," said Hogan in a March 12, 2015 Aurora Sentinel article.

Ira Mitzner, CEO of RIDA Development Corp., the Houston-based developer who will build the Gaylord, also confirmed progress of the project in a letter given to the Colorado Economic Development Commission. The letter states that the project budget is within 3.5 percent of the cost of the original project, estimated at around $824 million when approved in 2012.

Even before the project has begun construction, Mitzner says there are groups interested in visiting the Gaylord in Colorado. These include the Alliance for Continuing Medical Education, the American Gas Association, the American Immigration Lawyers Association, CCA Global, Georgetown University, Goodyear, Greenway Medical Technologies, Henry Schein, Johnstone Supply Company and Petco.

The Gaylord will be 1.9 million sq. ft., with a 60,000-sq. ft. atrium, 1,500 guest rooms, 400,000 sq. ft. of meeting space, and 7,300 square feet of retail shops. It will also have a minimum of three restaurants, as well as both indoor and outdoor pools, and a spa and fitness center.

Completion is currently scheduled for 2018.
Greetings Fellow Chamber Investors,

As the Chamber year draws to a close, I would like to take this opportunity to acknowledge the outstanding staff of the Aurora Chamber of Commerce. As the Chair, I have had the opportunity to enjoy a “behind-the-scenes” perspective, and I have been able to see how much preparation, work, and commitment the Chamber staff exhibit daily to ensure that this is the region’s premier Chamber of Commerce. You can read about their most recent major accomplishment with our Safety Program in this issue. They have also been hard at work on a redesigned Chamber website that will soon be unveiled. To the staff of the Chamber: Thank you!

We celebrated the accomplishments of a number of Eastern Metro individuals and businesses in March at the Chamber’s Annual Awards Dinner. You can find information about these outstanding recipients in this newsletter. Please join me in congratulating these deserving honorees. As always, the Awards Dinner was a fantastic evening, and I would like to offer a special thanks to my fellow bandmates and Chamber members Mike Hyman and Michelle Wolfe with the City of Aurora, Shannon Jones with FirstBank – Aurora, and Mark Werner with Great Western Printing. I would also like to thank Ron Willard and our friends at the School of Rock – Aurora for providing equipment, rehearsal space, and fellow rockers Randy Klingbeil and Katie Willard for the “Chamber Music” Band. My chance to play the drums again wouldn’t have been the same without this fantastic group of musicians. And who knew City of Aurora Mayor Steve Hogan and Congressman Mike Coffman were such talented percussionists?

I am pleased to report on the inaugural “Chairman’s Circle” Luncheon that took place in April. This new forum is designed to provide economic insight for The Chamber’s major investors and influencers. This first-of-its-kind event featured Dr. Helen Currie, the senior economist for ConocoPhillips, who enlightened the group about current market dynamics in the energy sector, as well as policies related to domestic and international markets. This new offering of The Chamber will be a valuable networking and educational opportunity for our members in the future.

From a new event to one that’s now in its 39th edition: The Chamber’s annual Armed Forces Recognition Luncheon. This event on May 8 is one of the most unique and outstanding opportunities in the State, honoring the service and sacrifice of the members of our armed forces. You won’t want to miss it. It has been an honor and a privilege to serve as your Board Chair. I would like to offer my appreciation to the members of the 2014-15 Chamber Board of Directors, with special recognition to our Executive Committee for their service: Dave Gruber with Cloud World Wide, Reneé Gullickson with Wells Fargo Bank, Bob Jamieson with Mutual of Omaha, Ryan Simpson with The Medical Center of Aurora, Dwight Taylor with Rocky Mountain Law Group, and Jeff Thompson with University of Colorado Health. I would also like to acknowledge and thank our Treasurer and Chair-elect, Jason Althouse with Western Credit Union. I know he will do a fantastic job leading our Board in the coming year.

And finally, thank you – as an important member of The Chamber – for your investment and individual contributions that ensure our Chamber is “Community First, Business Always.”

Sincerely,

David Patterson

Word travels fast, the community takes action

A February storm triggered a true crisis for more than 150 hundred homeless persons at the Comitis Crisis Center, many of them children.

Aurora activated its emergency services cold weather plan, and all 138 beds at Comitis were already filled. The Center then took in 38 more people, who slept across the street in the District One Police Substation. But finding enough beds to keep people out of the cold, wind, and snow was only part of the challenge.

“Food goes quickly,” said James Gillespie, community impact and government relations liaison for the Comitis Crisis Center, Inc., a subsidiary of Mile High Behavioral Healthcare.

“We were really stretched on food so we needed the nutritional basics—peanut butter and jelly—and we needed it fast.”

In its first-ever ranking of best employers, Forbes magazine rated Edward Jones the highest-ranking financial-services firm out of the list of 500 companies spanning 27 industries in the magazine’s America’s Best Employers 2015 edition, according to Ev Sequeira, Edward Jones financial advisor, and member of the Aurora Chamber of Commerce since 1999.

Excelsior Youth Center Receives Grant for GOALS Program

Excelsior Youth Center recently received a two-year, $150,000 Daniels Fund grant to support its GOALS Program (Girls Overcoming Addictions for Lifelong Success).

Excelsior Youth Center strengthens and educates youth and their families to achieve lasting success through a continuum of innovative treatments, services and solutions. One of the most prevalent challenges for Excelsior girls is substance abuse. In 2013, 46 percent of Excelsior’s girls were struggling with substance abuse. The GOALS program will address the myriad factors that contribute to effective substance abuse treatment for young women and deliver a multi-dimensional approach focused on three main components: Community Resources, Substance Abuse Counseling, and Assessment Capacity.

“The Excelsior clients served with this program are the ones who need it the most – girls transitioning out of residential treatment and reentering the community; and girls currently living in the community receiving support from our Community Based Services program. The accessibility of drugs, alcohol and negative peer influence for these girls is abundant and needs to be deflected with constructive community resources and consistent substance abuse counseling,” said Matt Louzon, Director of Community Based Services at Excelsior Youth Center.

Supporting Senate Bill 177

Article courtesy of the Colorado Association of Realtors

Colorado communities like Aurora are facing serious housing challenges. Rents are skyrocketing—rising faster than San Francisco and New York—making the Front Range one of the most expensive places in the country to live. The dream of homeownership for many Coloradans may soon be unreachable.

A recent Denver Post article noted that in March, “Aurora rents zoomed up faster than any other U.S. city.” That’s because a defect in state law has virtually halted the construction of affordable and attainable housing across Colorado. The condos that historically provided the most practical options for first-time homebuyers, as well as seniors looking to right-size their housing, are not being built because of the threat of time-consuming litigation.

It’s only a matter of time before Aurora’s housing market hits the tipping point. This should be a wakeup call for Governor Hickenlooper and state legislators to enact consumer-protection reforms that will remove the hurdles in the affordable housing market.

Lawmakers are working to fix this defect in Colorado law by supporting Senate Bill 177, which will create a quick and fair resolution for homeowners who need repairs while protecting the rights of all homeowners in a community.

The Aurora Chamber has joined a coalition of 35 mayors, bipartisan legislators, affordable housing advocates, business and trade groups, as well as newspaper editorial boards, to support this important consumer-protection legislation.

Please visit the Homeownership Opportunity Alliance to ask your state legislator to fix the defect by ensuring that Senate Bill 177 receives a fair hearing in the Colorado House of Representatives.
Leadership Aurora salutes the military at Buckley

It was an honor to learn more about our armed forces during March’s Leadership Aurora session. Thank you to Colonel Floyd Dunstan and all of the other military personnel for a phenomenal program.

It should also be noted that we are proud to have two class members currently serving in the U.S. Air Force 140th Force Support Squadron in the Colorado Air National Guard: Major Malona E. Cavanaugh and Chief Master Sgt. Sebastien Garcia. We also recognize Jim Kirsch, who served in the Air Force and is now the Commissioner at Aurora Veterans Affairs Commission, as well as Rene Simard, our fearless leader from the Aurora Chamber of Commerce who is a retired Command Chief Master Sergeant with 37 years in the Air Force.

Our military day took place at Buckley Air Force Base, which we learned is an Air Force Space Command (a major command of the United States Air Force) base that serves more than 92,000 active duty, National Guard, Reserve and retired personnel throughout the Front Range communities.

The economic impact of Buckley Air Force Base in Colorado is significant at $900 million. Construction projects underway are expected to boost its impact to over $1 billion this year, and the Base employs more than 14,000 military personnel (active duty and civilians).

Buckley is a mission-ready base and is always on a mission. They defend us through air operations, space-based missile warning capabilities, space surveillance operations, space communications operations and support functions.

Buckley’s Air Force Base host unit, the 460th Space Wing, delivers continuous global and infrared surveillance, global missile warning tracking, and homeland defense.

They are broken into three groups, each responsible for a distinct part of the Buckley Air Force Base mission—land, sea, and air. They shared with us that the Air Force base has to ability to send a missile to Russia within 30 minutes.

The base also hosts the Colorado Air National Guard 120th Fighter Squadron and its F-16C fighters, the 140th Wing also includes the Air Mobility Command’s 200th Airlift Squadron, operating the C-21 Learjet; the Air Force Space Command’s 137th Space Warning Squadron; and the Forces’ 240th Civil Engineering Flight. Air National Guardsmen of the Colorado Air National Guard provide services during national emergencies or wartime and natural disasters. The Colorado Air National Guard is an integral part of the Operation Noble Eagle mission responsible for the 24-hour-a-day defense of the land, sea, and air of the United States.

In our second briefing we learned about the National Guard’s State Partnership Program, which links states with partner countries to develop long-term relationships across various levels of military and civilian activities. Colorado’s partnership with Jordan appears to be mutually beneficial for both Colorado and Jordan.

“The state partnership with Jordan has been a great benefit for Colorado,” said Col. Greg Graf, Operations Director, Joint Force Headquarters, Colorado Air National Guard. “It has given the state of Colorado an opportunity to be a player in world politics in fostering a great relationship with one of our best allies in the region.”

We then visited Buckley’s “hush house.” While some call the sound of fighter jets engines the sound of freedom, not everyone likes to hear the noise. A hush house consists of noise dampening materials in the walls to lower the decibel level outside the facility muting the noise of the engine fighter jets engines while they are being tested without disturbing the local community. However these aren’t the only military air crafts at Buckley AFB.

The Colorado Army National Guard also occupies space at Buckley AFB. They operate the Army Aviation Support Facility at Buckley AFB and are responsible for supplying personnel and equipment for CH-47 Chinook, UH-1 Huey, and UH-60 Blackhawk helicopters.

While they also participate in wartime missions too, they uns selfishly help with natural disasters in Colorado. The first response team shared their experiences of helping the victims of the 100 year floods in 2013, helping residents and their pets move to safety. They also help with Colorado wildfires when they spring up. Their motto is “Mission First, People Always!” This part of the tour was awesome and it was fun getting in and out of the various helicopters.

Speaking on behalf of our class, I feel we all have a greater appreciation for our service men and women. Thank you for your service.

Video Killed the Radio Star but, now it can bring your brand to life

It was the Buggles back in 1979 who foretold the beginning of the video revolution to come. Fast forward a few decades and video is still killing.

Video is now the marketing giant that everyone should be utilizing. Look at the statistics for yourself.

“Videos are 53 times more likely than text pages to appear on the first page of search results” (Forrester)

“No one is coming to your website; you are going to them” (Implix)

Every day, there’s new uses for video—it has become a marketing staple needed in your tool box — ready to use at a moment’s notice. You can put it on your website, on YouTube, Twitter, Facebook, Vine and LinkedIn, and you can use it Tradeshows, in emails, and press releases — to name just a few applications. Plus, as an added benefit, when video is added to your website, Google rewards your website with a higher ranking.

Intern program gives back

Working with the public school system as well as colleges and technical schools, The Chamber is proud to “give back” through internships, providing opportunities to involve Aurora youth in the world of business. The Chamber is currently hosting two interns.

Marquize Fells, a senior at Aurora Public School’s Gateway High School, was recommended through the Executive Internship Program of Aurora Public Schools’ Pickens Technical College program. Fells will be entering the Colorado School of Mines in the fall, majoring in engineering. During his internship, Fells has contributed innovative ideas to Chamber staff and committee meetings and has completed several computer projects.

Amelia Amonick

Amelia Amonick is a senior graduating from Cherry Creek School District’s Grandview High School. She will be attending Boston College in the fall, majoring in marketing. Amonick has brought energy and creativity to the diverse projects she has undertaken at the Chamber.

Saving the program — so Chamber members can save money

Facing stricter requirements as well as an April 1, 2015 deadline, The Chamber’s Safety Group Program through Pinnacol Assurance was in jeopardy.

Thanks to the efforts of our partner agents at Forsberg Engerman and Company, Colorado Insurance Professionals, Associates Insurance Group, Walker-Dilworth, LLC, and T. Charles Wilson Insurance Service, the program reached the 40 policy, $500,000 threshold required to maintain the program moving forward.

The Safety Group Program has been a benefit of Chamber membership for more than 20 years. Companies qualifying for the program receive a 4% discount on their Workers’ Compensation insurance, as well as the possibility of a monetary dividend for maintaining a safe working environment with little or no workers’ compensation claims.

In some cases, Chamber membership fees are basically reimbursed through the 4% discount. And, of course, a safe working environment and adherence to safety rules and regulations keeps everyone — and the bottom line — healthier!

For more information about the Safety Group Program and qualification requirements, contact Mitzi.schindler@aurorachamber.org.

CareNexus program offers right care, right time, right place

In today's world, we live longer and more of our elders choose to remain living at home as long as possible. When they need personal assistance and in-home support, 78 percent rely on a family member or close friend to provide this help. Known as "informal caregivers," they often take on this role with little or no preparation, training or support. Because more than 60 percent of caregivers are formally employed; the 20-plus hours of care they may provide each week are in addition to their full or part-time job.

Research shows that the struggle to balance conflicting work and caregiving responsibilities takes a toll on employees' physical and psychological health. Employers are impacted as well by decreased work productivity, employee turnover and higher healthcare costs. But help is available for employers and their employee caregivers. InnovAge CareNexus offers senior care management services with personalized recommendations that support both the caregiver and their loved one.

CareNexus Coordinators are experienced, knowledgeable and compassionate senior care specialists. Our services include:

- Caregiver education and support
- Home safety evaluation with recommendations
- Community resource referrals
- Coordination of in-home services
- Coordination of medical appointments and therapies
- Legal and financial planning assistance

We take the time to understand each unique situation and remain available as support needs change. At InnovAge, we believe every senior is one in a million, not one of a million.
